Staff Spotlight:

We learned a lot about one of our teachers. Her name is Mrs. Mac. She likes to hang out with her son and go to the park. She lives in Palatine, IL. She has an older sister named Lindsay and a younger brother named Nick. She likes to watch movies and hang out with her family. Ms. Mac likes her job because she enjoys seeing young adults successfully achieve their goals, and working with 18 to 22 year olds.

Ms. Mac likes dancing to rap music. Her favorite colors are black and navy blue. Her favorite holidays are Halloween and Christmas. Her favorite movies are Mary Poppins, Batman the Dark Knight, and Harry Potter and the Deathly Hallows Part 2.

Advice:

You get invited to dinner by a friend and there is someone else there that you don't know about. What would you do?

Introduce yourself and start with some small talk. For example we will talk about the food or our day and ask some questions to find some common interests.

You might feel stressed out or hungry when meeting someone new; Try focusing your attention on the food or something nice to distract your anxiety.

You might think about why this other person was invited or you can ask. It may be because you have common interests or to start a new friend group.

Different Relationships

This week's domain is Daily Living. We have been learning about relationships. There are different types of relationships in everyone's lives. For example people have friends, romantic partners, and acquaintances, and others can be strangers. Depending on the relationship you should act differently with each person. Based on the relationships, there will be different activities or interactions depending on the category they fall under. We can better understand relationships using the social filter and perspective taking. Perspective taking will help you out by putting yourself in someone else's shoes. Social filters help you to make better decisions when we are with different people.

We also had discussions about friends versus dneirfs. Good friends will always stick with you and be there when you need them. Dneirfs, by contrast, are not very good friends, only caring about themselves and what they want. Simply put, never trust a dneirf with your darkest secrets. In conclusion, there are many relationships in life, some good, others not.
